As part of its commitment to growth, Allure Beauty Concepts continues to invest in both its people and its infrastructure. In addition to incorporating the skilled team from Kleen Concepts, led by Founder and CEO Grant Russell, the Company has also made strategic investments to bolster its existing executive talent already in place under Allure Labs Founder and CEO Sam Dhatt. Thomas Mooy has joined as CEO of Allure Beauty Concepts, bringing extensive experience from the beauty and nutrition industries, including as CEO of multiple scaled platforms. Pablo Gallo Llorente has been appointed CFO, providing executive experience from various leading food and ingredients corporations.

"Allure Labs has proven to be at the forefront of innovation and R&D for performance products (both OTC and non-OTC) demanded by prestige consumers. The strategic and highly complementary investment in Kleen Concepts is a hand-in-glove fit and represents the perfect next step in our strategic journey as we provide customers with an even broader suite of capabilities, speed-to-market and geographic reach," said Sam Dhatt, Founder and CEO of Allure Labs.

"Allure Labs' truly differentiated R&D capabilities, its culture and the support from TJC makes this investment an exciting step for our employees and customers,” said Grant Russell, Kleen Concepts Founder and CEO. “The opportunity to showcase Allure Labs’ innovation alongside Kleen Concepts’ operational and supply chain excellence will provide customers with a unique value proposition.”

“We are excited about the platform that is being built at Allure Beauty Concepts,” added Ian Arons, Partner at TJC. “Kleen Concepts is an integral partner to its customers, with a deeply rooted reputation for quality and complex manufacturing capabilities. The formation of ABC creates a leading R&D and manufacturing partner of scale for established and emerging brands.”

For Allure Labs and Kleen Concepts, daily operations and customer service following the transaction will be business as usual.

Guggenheim Securities, LLC acted as exclusive financial advisor to TJC on its investment in Allure Labs.
